CLAYHANGER

By ARNOLD BENNETT

A long novel of the "Five Towns" which abundantly fulfils the expectation of extraordinary work from the author of "The Old Wives' Tale" and "What the Public Wants."

Price $1.50 Net

Philadelphia Press

"A significant book, marvelous in its minute detail, singularly interesting in the gradual development of its theme, and brilliant in the general effect made by its execution."

Chicago Evening Post

"At all costs 'Clayhanger' should be read, and by all kinds of readers. It is the best novel Mr. Bennett has yet written, not forgetting his great novel 'The Old Wives' Tale.'"

FOUR BIG NOVELS

Have You A Sufficient Stock of Each

A WONDERFULLY TOLD STORY OF CONSERVATION

FREEBOOTERS OF THE WILDERNESS

By AGNES C. LAUT, Author of "Lords of the North," etc.

12mo. $1.35 net.

A spirited, even a powerful novel of the Northwest of America as it is to-day, by the author of that other spirited and highly successful American novel, "Lords of the North." The scene is high up in the big timber country with the Rangers, the sheepmen, the missionaries, the outlaws and the others who give the land its character. The issue is one of those which gives the cause of conservation its piquancy to-day, an issue resulting from corporate greed worked out through politics and lawlessness and its resistance by the conservators of the people's interest, the sage green rangers.

J. C. SNAITH'S New Novel

MRS. FITZ

"The most delectable novel since 'Araminta'" 12mo. $1.35 net.

This is the author's best novel—far and away his best novel.

This novel is filling the country with laughter and buzzing talk. It is worth while, and your friends will presently tell you so.

It is a novel of present-day life in England, and is remarkable for its wonderful characterization and lively story.

THE GIFT WIFE

By RUPERT HUGHES. 12mo. $1.35 net. Illustrated.

Here is a thoroughly interesting novel concerning Europe in its rapid action and holding the reader delightfully absorbed every minute. The hero, a young American surgeon, after a temporary detachment of personality (to use the terms of modern psychology), much to his astonishment discovers himself a patient in a Turkish harem, cared for by a charming veiled woman, the superfluous and unnoticed wife of a local prince to whom she had been presented by the Sultan. Her husband, absorbed in his jealous first wife, had in the phrase of the land, "never lifted her veil," even to discover her great beauty.

The romance that thereafter keeps the reader's nose constantly between the leaves, is of the most absorbing character. It is a story which will establish Mr. Hughes among the best selling novelists.

THE HOUSE OF BONDAGE

By REGINALD WRIGHT KAUFFMAN

$1.35 net.

EDWIN MARKHAM writes:

"A book that disturbs, that flashes light, that will not let you rest. . . . A book that blurs the eyes and stirs the heart with the pity of it. With nobility of manner with a sincerity that touches the subject as with fire, in a purity that burns away all impurity, Mr. Kauffman relates this story."

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr., writes, in part:

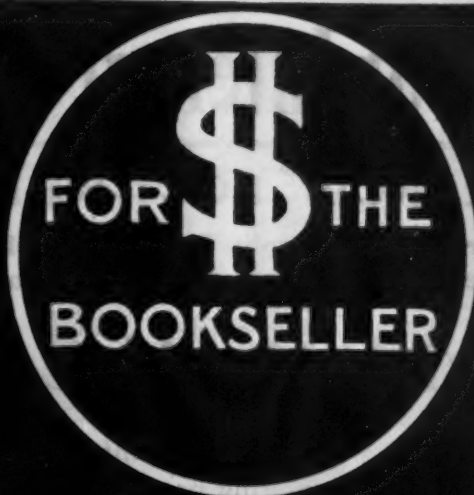

"I have read 'The House of Bondage' with much interest. The story is inexpressibly sad, but sadder still is the knowledge that it is true to life—true not only in the exceptional case, but in hundreds and doubtless thousands of cases.

"The author has handled a difficult subject with the utmost of delicacy consistent with perfect frankness. While telling his story fearlessly, he does so without sensationalism. I believe that the conditions with which the book deals must be generally known before they will be improved, and that the publicity thus given them will be of great value."

"I wish I could forget this novel, but it is not possible. Its wailing cry in the night rings out like the never ceasing sobbing toll of a ghostly bell."

Two Books of Interest to Everyone

By FRANCIS ROLT-WHEELER

Profusely Illustrated from Photographs Taken in Work for U. S. Government Large 12mo. Decorated cover. $1.50 each

The Boy with the U. S. Foresters

Replete with information, alive with adventure, and inciting patriotism at every step, this handsome book is one to be instantly appreciated.

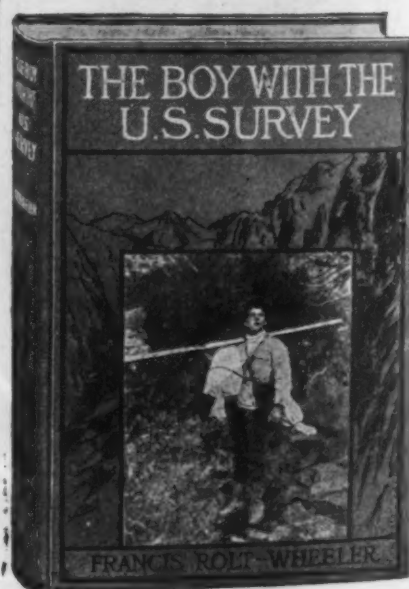

The peculiar timeliness and value of this book can best be shown by the fact that while it was in press more than two hundred lives were lost and millions of dollars worth of property destroyed through lack of such service as this book describes.

It covers five important lines of adventurous development:

1. The prevention and fighting of forest fires
2. The regulation of the grazing of cattle and sheep.
3. The preservation and disposition of lumber.
4. The wild ardor of the pursuit of big game.
5. The responsible life of the individual forester.

The Boy with the U. S. Survey

This story describes the thrilling adventures of members of the U. S. Geological Survey, not in the brief form of statistical reports and bluebooks, but graphically woven into a stirring narrative that both pleases and instructs. While the United States bureaus are not allowed to give their official endorsement to books, yet they are all eager to afford every facility to the author, and each manuscript is to be submitted to the chief of a bureau to insure accuracy of statement. These are the very books that will develop boys into well-informed and valuable citizens of these United States, alive to the needs of conservation of the vast resources and energies of their country.

THIRD EDITION

THE WHEELS OF TIME

By FLORENCE L. BARCLAY*Author of "The Rosary"*

12mo, cloth. Colored illustrations by Vosburgh
50 cents net. Postage, 6 cents

A BRILLIANT little story is contained in this volume,—one of those stories which appeal especially to young married people, as well as many old ones. It is the description of a brief period in the life of a young physician of growing fame, and his beautiful wife, after they have been married for seven years. The two are still devoted to one another, but the development of the husband in his studies and his professional activities has gone beyond that of his wife, occupied in a minor way with home cares, but largely with social engagements, about whom there is growing unobserved a wall of selfishness and conventionality. The husband, dimly conscious of their diverging paths, seeks in vain a remedy. It needs an hour of deep agony to awaken the real soul in the woman and make husband and wife one again. This is the account of the incidents leading up to the climax, where for once the reader, as well as the conscience-smitten young wife, finds that the wheels of time can move backward.

PRESS COMMENTS

"A model of literary expression."

"Remarkable in its delicacy, tenderness, and strength."

"One may begin to read the book sad, and close it rejoicing, or he may begin the reading of it cold and heartless, and end the reading full of tender feeling."

Cruising 'Round the Mediterranean In Your Easy Chair

Joel Cook has written another delightful book.

He has interwoven history, romance and description in the most pleasing way imaginable.

To read it is like cruising leisurely about with a genial companion who is guide, philosopher, story-teller and friend.

The author brings straight to your easy chair the storied splendor of "The Mediterranean and Its Borderlands"

You feel almost as keen pleasure in rambling through these pages as does the luxurious tourist of private yacht, caravan, or dahabiyeh on the Nile.

You pass from the Azores through the Strait of Gibraltar, visiting Southern Spain and France.

You loiter along the Riviera and Southern Italy. Through the eyes of the experienced traveler you explore the Barbary Coast.

Morocco, Tunis, Egypt and the Inland Moorish towns unfold their mysteries, while Greece, Constantinople, Asia Minor and Palestine become familiar places to you.

50 Photogravure Illustrations

There are 25 of these in each volume. Each one shows some rare bit of picturesque scenery along this easy-chair route.

These rare gravure plates are hand printed on specially made paper. Every one is a work of art.

For Holiday Giving

This story of the "Mediterranean and its Borderlands" will be of real live interest to everyone in your home. Read it yourself. Pass it along.

Think of your friends and the pleasure these books would give them.

You cannot spend an equal amount of money for any gift so rich and effective, and one which will live forever in the mind of the recipient.

Two volumes, Cloth, gilt tops, full gold embossed side and back stamping, silk marker, each volume containing about 600 pages, or a total of 1200 pages, with cloth jackets and cloth boxes to match the binding.

THE CHRISTMAS RUSH

How to Get Your Share of Holiday Orders

IN the early fall of the year every live bookseller considers plans for his holiday catalog, his best means of attracting Christmas Book Buyers. The question with him is how to make his Christmas announcements with dignity and effect without spending too much time and money in the production of an attractive catalog.

The problem is fully solved by "The Christmas Bookshelf" (the Christmas number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY) with the dealer's own imprint. It is a magazine-catalog of about 240 pages, copiously illustrated with specimen illustrations from the best books of the year. It contains a most attractive assemblage of the best new issues of all the publishers, with ample descriptive notices. A feature is the carefully prepared purchase list, which, with the publishers' own advertisements, gives a comprehensive survey of about all a bookseller would be likely to keep in stock during the holiday season.

It is a Christmas Catalog your customers would feel flattered in receiving!

The price, for editions with the bookseller's own imprint, is based on cost of paper and press work only, without counting cost of composition, and is, therefore, much below the cost of a catalog made by any bookseller for himself.

COST OF "THE CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF," IMPRINTED

The Golden Galleon

An Idyll of Woman's Love and Optimism

By LUCAS MALET

Author of "Sir Richard Calmady," etc., etc.

With Six Illustrations in Color by C. E. BROCK

12mo, cloth, net, $1.20

¶ The brilliant authoress of "Sir Richard Calmady" and "The Far Horizon" has given us another of her carefully wrought out pictures of life in London. Taking as her keynote the words of Marie De Nesselrode, "There is no one so forlorn as never to have known at least one stroke of fortune," she tells how love came into a lonely woman's life and the use she made of love. Lucas Malet knows the heart of a woman, all its hopes and fears and tenderness, as very few novelists have known. "The Golden Galleon" is a brave idyl, exquisite in its delicacy and simplicity, of a woman's faith and trust.

NOTES IN SEASON.

"A GARDEN OF GIRLS" is the Harrison Fisher book's title this year, which is published by Dodd, Mead & Company. The book is a collection of poems with the artist's latest pictures in color; there are decorative borders, head and tail pieces, making of it a most attractive holiday book.

BARSE & HOPKINS announce to the trade that they have made arrangements with the Hayes Lithographing Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., to take over the sole selling agency for their presentation and juvenile books. Many additions are promised to the line, which will be larger and better than ever in 1911. William Stitt, Jr., bespeaks for his successors the same appreciation and attention he has always enjoyed from the trade.

THERE was a subsidized rumor current last week that Mr. Roosevelt had appealed to his literary friends and six magazine and newspaper backers to come to his personal aid against the campaign which the Democratic and Reactionary Republican factions are waging against him. His reply to a query as to the truth of this rumor was characteristic: "Yes," he said. "I have engaged two minor poets and a nature faker to defend me."

At a time when people are displaying, more or less vociferously, widely varying views of the President, the logical way to get a true idea of Mr. Taft is to read what the man has written and said. He has published through Doubleday, Page & Company, two volumes, entitled "Political Issues and Outlooks," and "Presidential Addresses and State Papers" respectively. The second volume, which was brought out a short while ago, covers the period from Mr. Taft's nomination on March 4th, 1909, to the close of his 13,000-mile tour.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. announce heavy sales on their Fall fiction, which is interesting in view of the fact that six out of the ten titles are on the net basis. Mr. Parrish's "Keith of the Border" has gone into the third large edition, the fourth week after publication; Miss Marjorie Benton Cooke's "Girl Who Lives in the Woods" has gone into the second edition; and Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter's "The Price of the Prairie" has gone into the second edition. The latter book, by the way, promises to make another record of the sort made by Mr. Parrish's "When Wilderness Was King." It deals with pioneer days in Kansas much as Mr. Parrish's story dealt with Illinois, and its sale in Kansas so far has been a record one, the largest firm in Topeka having already disposed of close on to 1500 copies.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. publish to-day the following books: "The Digressions of V," by Elihu Vedder, which seems likely to be the autobiography of the year; "Among Friends," a new volume of essays by Dr. Samuel M. Crothers; "Tales From the Alhambra," by Washington Irving, adapted for young readers by Josephine Brower, with illustrations in color by C. E. Brock; "Husband," a play by John Corbin, which will be produced in New York this season; and "LXXV Sonnets," by William Wordsworth, in a Riverside Press edition of 440 numbered copies. They also have on press the following new printings: Fourth impression of "Preventable Diseases," by Dr. Woods Hutchinson; and second impressions of "John Brown," by Oswald G. Villard; "Clever Betsy," by Clara Louise Burnham; "The Meddlings of Eve," by William G. Hopkins, and "Light Horse Harry's Legion," by Everett T. Tomlinson.

Weekly Record of New Publications

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent by publisher for record. All books sent, unless of slight importance, are given descriptive annotation. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

* Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (11mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow. For books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, etc.

Bangs, Mary Rogers. Jeanne D'Arc: the Maid of France. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, [1910.] c. 10+351 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

This story fills a need which has been neglected. There has been so much controversy lately on the minor points of the Maid's life that writers have somewhat marred the value of their work for the general reader by their defense of their own conclusions as against those of others. There is none of this in the present "life." It tells Joan's career simply, directly, and with great dramatic force. Extremes of interpretation have been avoided, as well as anything that could offend the most delicate religious susceptibilities. Adults will find it a sympathetic and authoritative work.

Barrie, Ja. Matthew. Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens; with drawings by Arth. Rackham. N. Y., Scribner, 1910. c. '02-'06. 126 p. O. cl., $1.50 net.

Bartlett, F: Orin. The prodigal pro tem; il. by Howard Chandler Christy. Bost., Small, Maynard, [1910.] c. 331 p. D. cl., $1.50.

By the author of "The seventh noon," "The web of the golden spider," etc. Richard Barnes, artist, on a walking and sketching tour through New England finds a charming girl in tears over a letter which is from a brother in Alaska refusing to come home to see his father, with whom he quarreled five years before. The old man has become blind and is pining away with longing for his son. Barnes offers to impersonate the son and in so doing saves the father's life, but when his sight also begins to come back, the young man is in a quandary; however the real son returns repentant and Barnes and the heroine are happy. The wild tales of Alaska which Barnes invents to give local color to his deception are most entertaining.

Beach, E: Latimer. Midshipman Ralph Osborn at sea; a story of the U. S. navy; il. by Fk. T. Merrill. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1910.] c. 330 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author, a captain of the U. S. Navy, participated in the campaign which brought peace at the time of the Filipino Insurrection. Much in this story the author heard from the lips of Aguinaldo, Paterno and others prominent Filipinos. This book is written in the belief that the Filipino will some day be entirely self-governing. An adventure book for boys in their teens.

Benson, Father Rob. Hugh. The cost of a crown; a story of Douay and Durham; a sacred drama in 3 acts; with il. by Gabriel Pippet. N. Y., Longmans, Green, 1910. 9+101 p. D. bds., $1 net.

Author is Priest in Catholic Arch-diocese of Westminster, and has written many books of a religious nature and a mystery play, "In honor of the Nativity of our Lord." This play was written in honor of the Centenary of St. Cuthbert's College, Ushaw; it is in accordance with the facts of the Venerable John Bost's life and death, and in the third act much of the dialogue is taken from a verbatim report of the trial. With one or two exceptions all the characters are historical.

Cannon, H. Lewin. Reading references for English history. Bost., Ginn, [1910.] c. 15+559 p. D. cl., $2.50.

Exact references to some fifteen hundred of the most useful and accessible works on English history will be found in this book. The plan of the work includes: 1, a bibliography (163 p.) of all the books referred to; and 2, topics and references covering the whole field of English history, chronologically divided into sections, with special sections for colonial history. Each section contains a summary of sub-topics; references to accessible sources; references to modern works of a nature especially suitable for high-school students, though often available for older readers; references to modern works of a more advanced character, intended for college students and general readers; bibliographical references designed to facilitate further reading. The work concludes with appendices that cannot fail to be useful,—one being a chronological index to the important historical characters in the "Dictionary of national biography," and the two others relating to historical fiction and poetry, prepared by Miss Josephine Smith, of the University of Cincinnati. Index.

Carr, Mrs. Sarah Pratt. Billy To-morrow in camp; il. by H. S. De Lay. Chic., McClurg, 1910. c. 263 p. D. (Billy To-morrow ser.) cl. $1.25.

Chadwick, Lester. A quarter-back's pluck; a story of college foot-ball. N. Y., Cupples & Leon, [1910.] c. 305 p. pls. D. (College sports ser.) cl., $1.

Another story of college sport, by the author of "The rival pitchers." Phil Clinton and his chum, Tom Parsons, coming into their estate as dignified freshmen are moving into new quarters when the book opens. The tricks of the sophomores on the juniors and the many college rivalries as told here, make a very entertaining book. Not of least interest to boys in their teens is the relating of incidents regarding the football team.

Channon, Fk. E. An American boy at Henley; il. by H. Burgess. Bost., Little, Brown, [1910.] c. 6+296 p. D. (Handy school-boy ser.) cl., $1.50.

Roger, an American boy, is placed by his father, on the way to India, in an English preparatory school. The story shows how he adjusts himself in manly fashion to the ways of English school life, differing greatly from those of American schools, and the incidents include some spirited football, boating and cricket matches; the adventures in an ascent of Mount Snowdon, and the rescue by the boys of some shipwrecked persons from a foundering brig in the British Channel.

Confession (The) of a rebellious wife. Bost., Small, Maynard, [1910.] c. 64 p. D. cl., 50 c. net.

The feelings and opinions on married life written in the first person by a woman who reveals herself as quite as self-centered as the husband she complains of as being self-sufficient and absorbed in business. Neither of them having realized that marriage is a mutual adjustment and to be happy both must give up something of their former independence, while gaining greater freedom in other ways.

Cook, W. Azel. Through the wilderness of Brazil, by horse, canoe and float. N. Y., Amer. Tract Soc., [1910.] c. '09. 493 p. pls. O. cl., $1.50.

Mr. Cook went as a missionary to the most remote parts of Brazil among people to whom the Brazilian language was almost unknown. Part of his journey was through untracked jungle, up and down unnavigated rivers and among hostile natives, and all this he sets down in his book, as well as much about the more settled part of the country, the people, their industries, government, etc. The book is well illustrated from photographs.

Cooke, Ja. Fs. Standard history of music; a first history for students at all ages; forty illustrated story lessons in the development of musical art, adapted for beginners, musical clubs, private teaching, classwork and general reading, including an appendix upon club organization and management, together with a map of musical Europe. Cooper, Ja. Fenimore. The last of the Mohicans; or, a narrative of 1757; with il. [in color] by E. Boyd Smith. N. Y., Holt, [1910.] c. 9+523 p. O. cl., $1.35 net.

The first of a series devoted to classics like "Two years before the mast," "Treasure Island" and "Tom Brown's school days," for which Mr. E. Boyd Smith has made eight pictures in color and some forty line drawings. In type, binding and every detail of manufacture, as well as in the illustrations, the publishers aim at making a specially attractive series.

Cragin, Laura Ella. Old Testament stories for little children. N. Y. and Chic., Revell, [1910.] c. 290 p. pls. D. cl., $1.25 net.

By the author of "Kindergarten Bible stories," etc. Old Testament stories told in simple language for small children. The illustrations are from famous pictures.

Crawford, Mary Caroline. Romantic days in old Boston; the story of the city and of its people during the nineteenth century; with numerous illustrations. Bost., Little, Brown, 1910. c. 19+411 p. pls. pors. cl., $2.50 net, boxed.

Good Americans should enjoy this book. Margaret Fuller, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Longfellow, Holmes, Lowell, Higginson and Aldrich are here as nearly in the flesh as mere pen and ink will allow. Great literary lights who came to the city for visits are also included—Dickens, Thackeray, Anne Gilchrist, the woman friend of Whitman; Delia Bacon, who died trying to prove Shakespeare did not write his own works, and many others. That devout company of men and women who dreamed at Brook Farm have a chapter in the book, as do "The old Museum and its contemporary theatres," "The story of the Athenæum," "Some famous hostilities" and "Social queens and the world they ruled." Rare views of old Boston and famous family portraits—some of which have never before been reproduced—will be found among the many illustrations which enrich the volume.

Crook, W: H. Through five administrations; reminiscences; ed. by Margarita Spalding Gerry. N. Y., Harper, 1910. c. '07-'10. 279 p. pors. O. cl., $1.80 net.

The author's material has been edited by Margarita Spalding Gerry, author of the Lincoln story, "The toy-shop." In 1864 Colonel Crook was appointed body-guard to the President. The author gives many details of Lincoln's life at the White House, tells about the visitors who thronged the anteroom of the President's office, and relates anecdotes hitherto untold. The author dwells upon his reasons for believing that the President had "some sort of vague warning" upon the day of his death. The remainder of the book is hardly less interesting. It deals in similar fashion with the administrations of Johnson, Grant, Hayes, and Garfield. Johnson was a man for whom Colonel Crook was forced to feel a strong admiration. The book shows the social life of the times, and relates many informal episodes.

Danby, Fk., [pseud. for Mrs. Julia Frankau.] Let the roof fall in. N. Y., Appleton, 1910. c. 406 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

Most of the characters in this novel are Irish, although a good portion of the story has Siam for its setting. The hero, head of an old Irish family, marries the woman he loves believing she still loves Terence, his deceased predecessor. She is beneath him socially, and she has to learn many things before she feels unashamed in society. Under the care of Derry, her husband, she grows to love him, and, through a misunderstanding under the influence of a designing woman, she leaves him believing she in this way helps him most. The journey that "ends in lover's meeting" and the final revealing of their love ends the book. The author wrote also "Pigs in clover" and "Heart of a child."

Davies, Maria Thompson. The road to Providence; with il. by W. B. King. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill, [1910.] c. 274 p. D. cl., $1.50.

By the author of "Miss Selina Luc." The story tells of the love of a country doctor for a charming girl, a famous singer, who comes to the tiny Tennessee town to recover her voice. The doctor's mother, known to everyone as Mother Mayberry, is a delightfully quaint philosopher, whose humorous appreciation of human foibles and genuine love for all mankind make her the center of interest in the book.

Doane, Rennie W. Insects and disease; a popular account of the way in which insects may spread or cause some of our common diseases; with many original il. from photographs. N. Y., Holt, 1910. c.

14+227 p. pls. D. (American nature ser.: Group iv., Working with nature.) cl., $1.50 net.

Author is assistant professor of entomology, Leland Stanford Junior University. This non-technical work brings together the most important facts, largely from sources at present inaccessible to the general reader and even to many physicians and entomologists, in regard to the development, habits, structures, life histories, and methods of extermination of the insects that are concerned. The chapters are entitled: Parasitism and disease; Bacteria and protozoa; Ticks and mites; how insects cause or carry disease; House flies or "typhoid-flies;" Mosquitoes; Mosquitoes and malaria; Mosquitoes and yellow fever; Plague and fleas; Other diseases, mostly tropical, known or thought to be carried by insects. Bibliography (46 p.). Index.

Dodgson, C: Lutwidge, ["Lewis Carroll," pseud.] Alice in Wonderland; pictured [partly in color] by Mabel Lucie Attwell. N. Y., Raphael Tuck & Sons Co., [1910.] 148 p. O. bds., $2; $2.50.

A new edition with new pictures, many of them in color, showing an Alice in more modern costume than in the drawings familiar to everyone in the former editions. Children will rejoice that she always looks the same in each picture, Miss Attwell not having made the fatal mistake of giving each portrait of the small heroine a different face, as so often happens in books for small readers.

Eaton, Wa. Prichard. At the New Theatre and others; the American stage; its problems and performances, 1908-1910. Bost., Small, Maynard, [1910.] c. 10+359 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

Mr. Eaton, director of the New Theatre, dedicates his book to Prof. George Pierce Baker of Harvard University, the founder of the pioneer course for the study of dynamic composition, "keen and catholic critic" and "inspiring leader in the movement for a better appreciation among educated men of the art of the practical theatre." The introduction is devoted to a history and characterization of the theatrical syndicate, and highly interesting it is. It is followed by a group of papers including nine criticisms of New Theatre performances; a second group composed of sixteen accounts of performances elsewhere, and a third made up of eight essays on matters and men more or less connected with the drama. This third group, with its papers on Clyde Fitch and William Winter, and its serious discussions of the influence exerted on children by the moving picture shows, and of the readiness of the poor and unlearned to patronize the best drama if it be offered to them is the most interesting of the three.

Field, Wa. Taylor. What is success? Bost., Pilgrim Press, [1910.] c. 31 p. D. pap., 25 c. net, in envelope.

The author's definition of success is growing a little every day, looking out upon life fearlessly and hopefully, doing with our might the common task that stands before us, trying to make ourselves good and other people happy, treating duty as friend rather than a master, and work as a joy rather than a task.

Flowerdew, Herbert. The second elopement. N. Y., Brentano's, 1910. 320 p. D. cl., $1.50. Lady Ermytrude, daughter of the Duke of Wye.

to escape a forced marriage with a man of title, nicknamed "Jacko" because he looks so much like a monkey—runs away. She has no money and offers a valuable pendant as payment for a ticket at the railroad station. St. George, a popular author, offers to give her money for her ticket, and he takes the pendant which the ticket agent refused. Later they are together in a first-class compartment, and, without knowing who she is, after he hears her story, he offers her work. He wins her love and they are to be married when she is whisked away secretly by her father to be married to Jacko. Of course St. George wins her again and they are happily married.

This book completes the author's Italian trilogy, of which his "Castel del Monte" and "Sorceress of Rome" were the first two. It is a historical story woven around the notorious Borgia family. All the intrigue and corruption of the times are presented, and it is a remarkable thing that there can be such a thing as a happy ending to all the bloodshed and burning and fighting that goes on. A contented and happy Borgia is really a thing worth reading about, and that comes on the last page.

A taste of adventure in Russia during Revolutionary times made the author "turn tramp" and leave a peaceful English life for one of free exploration. A visit to Russian friends, which showed him the life of the people of Russia as it really is, prefaced the journey to the Caucasus, where mountain climbing and sojourning with shepherds were among his experiences. Five days under arrest gave him an opportunity to see another side of Russian life.

All about how the world-renowned Gamby tried to defeat the equally renowned Professor Scorpioni, who demanded Mademoiselle Gamby's hand in marriage. How the animals in the menagerie helped matters along by word and deed, for of course they can talk, is amusingly told for children, in the text and colored pictures.

The scene is laid in Egypt in the days of Prester John. Sayrane, daughter of the Egyptian ruler, a Mohammedan, is betrothed to Prester John. His brother comes on as the Emperor's ambassador and himself wins her love. Through Mohammedan intrigue he is flung into prison as an impostor, for he has revealed to Sayrane that he is not Prester John's brother. Through another plot he is released without the Princess' knowledge. Prester John continues his journey to her and she feels she can only release her lover by asking the favor of him. This she does and it is granted, after which Sayrane finds the Emperor is also her lover. By the author of the "Flaming sword," etc.

Hartmann, Sadakichi, ["Sydney Allen," pseud.] The Whistler book; a monograph of the life and position in art of James McNeill Whistler, together with a careful study of his more important works; with 57 reproductions of Mr. Whistler's most important works. Hawkins, Anthony Hope, ["Anthony Hope," pseud.] Second string. [Garden City, N. Y., Doubleday, Page, 1910. c. 6+497 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is laid in London and Meriton, a small country town. Andy Hayes, returning to England after eight years' absence, finds his boyhood's hero, Harry Belford, just entering politics, and falling in love with Vivien Wellgood, who lives with her father and a Isobel Vintry, her companion. Harry is brilliant and charming, but the type of man who is too fickle to love one woman for long, the one just out of his reach always proving irresistible. As soon as he is engaged to Vivien, he falls in love with Isobel. Andy is rather slow, but having made up his mind he is absolutely reliable, and it is a great shock and grief to him to find his hero so altogether unworthy. About these two strongly contrasted central figures Mr. Hawkins has woven an interesting story of English life in which all the characters are vividly drawn.

One of O. Henry's characteristic tales told in the first person. Troubled with neurasthenia he seeks the doctors, who advise such remedies as a sanitarium "on a bare mountain frequented only by infrequent frequenters." He is fed on "bromo-seltzer pancakes," and flees from the place. Other doctors give verdicts and apply cures all humorous, but an old country doctor in the Blue Ridge brings back health.

The scene of this story for boys and girls is laid in Texas, following the passing of the law requiring the building of fences to stop the roaming of cattle from ranch to ranch. The cutting of the wire fence, the stampede of cattle through this opening, and events in consequence thereof, bring about a series of adventures that will thrill and entertain the readers. Throughout the story the hero is puzzled and perplexed by his own indecision regarding the Quest, which is not finally disposed of until the last chapter is finished.

The author's contention is, that to "turn the cheek" is the correct attitude, without the necessity of receiving the blow, for by skill and politeness, by such phrases as "Have you carefully considered so and so?" "You will, perhaps, agree," "How do you account for?" "Many persons think," etc., the cheek does not receive the blow. Sincerity and tactfulness with as simple a way of expressing the truth as possible are the first requirements in successful argument. Appendix.

Author was formerly instructor in Public Speaking at Yale Divinity School, and is the author of other works along similar lines. He commends his book with confidence to every ambitious man, believing there are men held in bondage, limited in their lives, by distrust and lack of self-confidence. He teaches that self-confidence is developed by intelligent self-examination, by checking undesirable tendencies, and by establishing correct habits of thought and conduct. The last chapter is devoted to quotations to keep in mind that help to build up confidence.

Mr. Low succeeded the late Russell Sturgis and Mr. John La Farge as Scammon Lecturer at the Chicago Art Institute, and the sixteen lectures which compose this volume were the most popularly successful so far delivered. This is largely due to the charming personal note that characterizes them and that was a marked feature of the author's previous volume, "A chronicle of friendships." The book records the writer's artistic life so far as this may illuminate the artistic record of past and present in this country and is full of entertaining reminiscences as well as of instructive data and suggestive commentary.

Admiral Mahan has for some time given a close study to international relations, and has just completed a sketch of them as now existing, with their bearing upon American interests. The work opens with a brief historical summary, eliciting necessarily an allusion to the contrasted European ideas of Balance of Power and Concert of Europe, and proceeds to examine the existing relations between Great Britain and Germany, with the apparent progress of the latter towards the leadership of Europe. A valuation of the balance of forces now existing in Europe leads us to an appreciation of their probable effects upon the United States as concerns our two leading external policies, the Monroe Doctrine and the Open Door.

The scene of this tale is laid in the Mississippi Valley more than half a century ago, when the river steamer, flatboats and rafts were the principal means of communication throughout that section. The country was new, the river was not only the main highway through which people had to travel, but also sheltered swarms of pirates and other lawless folk whose activities, together with the perils of storm and flood, often tried the courage and endurance of the voyager. The author does not depend upon superhuman feats or improbable events, finding the stern realities of the time replete with excitement and adventure.

This book is distinctively a history of the shipping on the Great Lakes. Marine development, from its genesis three centuries ago to the present day of immense steel freighters and innumerable fleets, is covered, the perils that ever have and still environ this shipping are told in a thrilling manner, and the building and operation of the present-day freighters, are told in detail. And through the story, with its interesting sidelights on history and bizarre tales of lost treasure and lost people, is woven the revelation of the economic value of lake shipping, and in conclusion there are far-seeing chapters on the possibilities of greater waterway traffic development in the future.

Murat, Princess Caroline. My memoirs. N. Y., Putnam, 1910. 13-343 p. pors. pls. O. cl., $3.50 net.

Of unusual interest to American readers of autobiographical reminiscences is this volume which the Princess Caroline Murat, granddaughter of the great Murat, King of Naples, left unfinished at her death in the summer of 1902. She was born in exile, at Bordentown, New Jersey, Dec. 31, 1833, her father being Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles Murat. A view of the Murat house at Bordentown, from a painting by the writer of the Memoirs, forms one of the many interesting illustrations in the book. Restored to the land of her ancestors in 1848, the Princess again became a wanderer with the downfall of Napoleon III., this time choosing England for her place of exile, where she died. Mr. Robert Leighton contributes an introduction to the volume. Many famous persons appear in her pages, notably the Empress Eugénie, whom she seems to have cordially hated, and the Emperor himself, whom the kindred blood in her veins made her judge more kindly.

Stephen is an interesting young man who seems to choose to play with his life and his friends as if neither were of consequence. He is accused of murder, condemned and disinherited by his father, and is suspected of arson. All these things he shoulders without explanation in a debonair manner which really does not merit the general clearing up of mystery that ends the book. One girl, Celia Thorne, understands and loves him; naturally in her lies his happiness. All the characters are pleasant excepting Agatha—who becomes the wife of Stephen's brother, and her eventual death recompenses the reader for the only slight unpleasantness. - Richards, Mrs. Laura Eliz. Howe. "Up to Calvins"; il. by Fk. T. Merrill. Bost., Estes, [1910.] c. 327 p. D. cl., $1.25. Calvin Parks and his wife were generous farm people whose sole idea of life was to do things for other people. They kept twin old men, who were relatives, until they died. Then they brought to their house a helpless old lady and Mitty May, a little girl whom they eventually adopted. After his wife's death Calvin Parks fills the house with the halt, the lame, and the blind, whom he calls his "guests," and their interminable stays he designates as "visits." Their impositions and demands upon him become so great, and their quarrelings between themselves so frequent that he is forced to give his idea up. Mitty May marries and he goes off to sea. A sequel to "The wooing of Calvin Parks."

Stein, Evaleen. A little shepherd of Provence; il. in colour by Diantha Horne Marlowe. Bost., L. C. Page, 1910. c. 209 p. D. (Roses ser.) cl., $1.

A tale of Provence of six hundred years ago. Little Jean was crippled and he tended his father's sheep in the pasture-land the lords allowed the peasants in those days. Many pretty legends and customs of Provence are given, among others a tale of a Golden Goat who guarded treasure in the mountains. So, one day when Jean awoke from a nap and found a goat with golden silky hair among his flock he thought it was the animal of the legend. He determined to go to the fold at Christmas Eve at midnight when the animals were said to talk and ask the goat about the treasure. There he finds a fugitive, and, in getting him food and drink, the midnight hour passes and he does not find out about the treasures. The man whom he shelters goes away and returns with wonderful foreign rose slips, which he shows Jean how to grow. Through the cultivation of these good fortune comes to his poor family.

Sullivan, J: Ja. American corporations; the legal rules governing corporate organization and management, with forms and illustrations. N. Y., Appleton, 1910. c. 13+455 p. D. cl., $2 net.

Author is assistant professor in business law at the University of Pennsylvania. This volume combines a scientific treatment of corporation law with a mass of practical information which must usually be sought through a number of different books. In addition, the subject is handled in an interesting way, so that the casual reader may find entertainment as well as instruction. This twofold purpose has led the author to relegate a quantity of detailed information to the appendices at the end of the book. A number of illustrative cases which have been decided by the highest courts serve to brighten the text, and at the same time explain some of the more difficult principles. Besides, a variety of forms are introduced in appropriate places. Special attention is paid to the rights and powers of companies coming into one state from another, and also to public and semi-public corporations. There is, moreover, a careful discussion of limited partnership associations, which in many features resemble chartered companies. Index.

A tale of Provence of six hundred years ago. Little Jean was crippled and he tended his father's sheep in the pasture-land the lords allowed the peasants in those days. Many pretty legends and customs of Provence are given, among others a tale of a Golden Goat who guarded treasure in the mountains. So, one day when Jean awoke from a nap and found a goat with golden silky hair among his flock he thought it was the animal of the legend. He determined to go to the fold at Christmas Eve at midnight when the animals were said to talk and ask the goat about the treasure. There he finds a fugitive, and, in getting him food and drink, the midnight hour passes and he does not find out about the treasures. The man whom he shelters goes away and returns with wonderful foreign rose slips, which he shows Jean how to grow. Through the cultivation of these good fortune comes to his poor family.

Sullivan, J: Ja. American corporations; the legal rules governing corporate organization and management, with forms and illustrations. N. Y., Appleton, 1910. c. 13+455 p. D. cl., $2 net.

Author is assistant professor in business law at the University of Pennsylvania. This volume combines a scientific treatment of corporation law with a mass of practical information which must usually be sought through a number of different books. In addition, the subject is handled in an interesting way, so that the casual reader may find entertainment as well as instruction. This twofold purpose has led the author to relegate a quantity of detailed information to the appendices at the end of the book. A number of illustrative cases which have been decided by the highest courts serve to brighten the text, and at the same time explain some of the more difficult principles. Besides, a variety of forms are introduced in appropriate places. Special attention is paid to the rights and powers of companies coming into one state from another, and also to public and semi-public corporations. There is, moreover, a careful discussion of limited partnership associations, which in many features resemble chartered companies. Index.

The author, impressed with Sir Oliver Lodge's theories, especially in his "Ether of space," where the conditions are set forth that apparently fit the problem as to the environment of the spiritual man immediately after his withdrawal from the physical world, has here endeavored to trace this analogy. If "Life transfigured" can be said to have two leading and definite aims, they are the presentation of the conviction of the unity of the physical and the spiritual worlds as an unbroken chain of evolutionary progress, and the continuation of the expressed conviction of the close, and the absolutely practical and ever-present aid of the Holy Spirit. That religion is a life, and not a litany; and that in all forms of organized religion, as well as in personal prayer, is this all-conquering aid to be found.

This is a book of Arctic exploration. Mrs. Wright's first interest in the subject, which she treats at length in this volume, was derived from her father, the late Rear Admiral David Smith, to whose stories of the sea she listened when she was a child. In the present work the long line of Arctic explorers, from the earliest times to the discovery of the pole, tell their own stories, thus contributing to a collection that is unique in the history of human daring and adventure. The volume is illustrated with more than fifty reproductions of modern Arctic expeditions, as well as with rare old prints of some of the early adventures and the scenes through which they passed. Princess Flower Hat is a most engaging creature who follows the quiet life of Barbara and Evan in a happy friendship. She is thirty-four and has never thought of marriage, although John Todd has stood willing for fifteen years and over. The Princess buys a miniature farm and goes to gardening with Barbara and Evan giving advice by telephone and visits. John Todd marries and the Princess feels badly about it because some other woman persuaded him she was not the right mate and not her own words! She reconciles herself however by marrying a next-door neighbor, Mr. Vincent, who grabs her over a crashing tea-table and "makes her answer."

The Publishers' Weekly

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

November 5, 1910

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COPYRIGHT AND REGISTRATION

At the International Congress of Librarians in Brussels, as previously at the International Congress of Publishers in Amsterdam, much attention was rightly given to the subject of copyright and registration. There was at both entire unanimity in the recognition of authors' rights to the full, but there was also evident, particularly at the Librarians' Congress, a desire that for practical purposes as well as for the definite protection of the author, the publishers and all concerned, the national protection of copyright should be made the occasion of a national registration of book production and a basis for national bibliography.

This is accomplished, in large measure, if not to entire satisfaction, in the new American law of 1909. The proposed English law, in the desire to give authors the fullest rights of property, does not make any requirement of registration and at the suggestion of English librarians, though without specific reference to England, a resolution was passed in favor of combining with copyright protection a requirement for official registration, including the usual data for bibliographical record.

Continental practice, in conformity with the conventions of Bern and Berlin, creating and developing the international copyright union, does not usually include registration. The English practice is to require registration, at Stationers' Hall, only as a precedent to suit, involving the awkward dilemma that an innocent infringer may find himself suddenly and seriously endangered by the registration of a work as to which there was no evidence of copyright, as actually happened in the case of the first number of the English edition of Harper's Magazine by reason of the use of a single illustration, a portrait of Thomas Carlyle, supposed to be opened to general use.

The American code indicates, if it does not fully realize, a theory or method which admits the author's full property rights, while involving registration. The author obtains copyright by publication with the inclusion of a copyright notice, which he may insert without application to, or permission from the Copyright Office. But to justify this copyright notice and to obtain legal protection, he is required to deposit copies of his work "promptly after publication," and from the deposit of copies the Copyright Office makes its registration. This registration affords the desired bibliographical material (price excepted), and the printed card system of the Copyright Office and the Library of Congress forms the basis for an official national bibliography. It is to be hoped that the Library of Congress will before long assume full responsibility for a national bibliography, preferably with the beginning of 1911, by supplementing the information obtained through the Copyright Office with information obtained through other sources of works privately printed or for other reasons not entered for copyright.

The American method, freed from such restrictions as the manufacturing clause and other obnoxious complications, furnishes a precedent which may well be considered in the final shape of the English code, now in tentative shape; and we commend it for study by English copyright authorities. Current English bibliography has long lagged behind that of other countries, the United States not excepted; and it would be a great boon to Anglo-American bibliography if registry, as at the British Museum, could be combined into one act, at one place, possibly through the method of making deposit the single act and registration an official sequent to that act. If Canada in its proposed legislation, as well as Australia, should follow some such system, a long stride toward the complete current bibliography of works in the English language would be accomplished.

INCREASE IN SECOND-CLASS POSTAGE RECOMMENDED AGAIN.

PRESIDENT TAFT and Postmaster General Hitchcock have reached an agreement as to the recommendations the President will make to Congress regarding a change in the second-class postage rates, that the magazines be required to pay the present rate of 1 cent a pound on all reading matter and a much higher rate, to be determined later, on the advertising pages. Each magazine will be required to send a copy of its current issue to the Post Office Department each week, or month, as the case may be. There the publication will be dissected. The reading matter and the advertising sections will be separately weighed and the amount of postage computed by the number of magazines sent out. Newspapers will not be affected.

Mr. Hitchcock believes the plan of separating the reading and advertising matter in the magazines to be entirely feasible, and to be the proper solution of the problem.

President Taft is looking forward to a one-cent rate for letter postage.

The establishment of the proposed new rates as to magazines, the President believes will do much to bring about the penny postage plan. At the same time he thinks the magazines will be compelled to pay only their just share in the postal expenses.

The President is determined to push his plan for placing second and third class postmasters under the civil service. He will make the recommendation to Congress in his forthcoming message, and hopes for favorable action. In addition to taking these classes of postmasters entirely out of politics, the President believes the move will prove economical.

MARK TWAIN'S ESTATE.

THE inventory of Mark Twain's estate, returned by the appraisers, Albert Bigelow Paine and Harry A. Lounsbury, to the Probate Court for the District of Redding, gives a total of $611,136, of which $70,000 represents the value of his home, "Stormfield," and the cottage known as the "Lobster Pot," while $541,136 is personal property. The sole heir is his only surviving child, Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the wife of the Russian pianist.

The copyright values of his writings are grouped in the inventory in the assets of the Mark Twain Company, incorporated a few years before his death, to which all the copyrights were assigned. His fifty shares in the stock of that company are listed in the inventory at $200,000. As an item of the personal estate, the appraisers also note a trunk and its contents, which he had placed with the Lincoln Trust Company of New York. In the trunk are certain of his manuscripts, but no value was placed on them, for the originals are at Stormfield.

Other items in the inventory are:

100 shares American Telegraph and Telephone Company stock.....	$13,687.50
1750 shares Utah Consolidated Mining Company.....	80,837.50
165 shares United Fruit Company.....	29,750.00
67 shares Brooklyn Union Gas Company..	18,100.00
100 shares Union Pacific Railway Company at 185%.....	18,587.50
813 shares J. Langdon Company at 26.56..	21,074.58
60 shares Roodeport Central Deepes (an English corporation), at 10 shillings....	150.00
2 bonds Park County, State of Montana.	2,000.00
10 bonds Duval County, State of Florida.	5,000.00
Cash due from C. J. Langdon of Elmira, being the proceeds of the sale of real estate, made April 1, 1910.....	41,666.67

The inventory tells the story of certain unfortunate investments, which the author made, notably his venture in the securities of the Plasmon Milk Product Company. The total value of his 375 shares in this company is placed at $100. Nearly a thousand shares of various corporations are marked as worthless.

The furniture and furnishings of Stormfield are valued at $10,145.

At the time of Mark Twain's death in April, it was predicted that his estate would be a large one, and the fact that the figures run above $600,000, is peculiarly interesting, as his entire fortune was swept away with the failure of the C. L. Webster Company.

POST CARD MERGER.

A REPORT from Portland, Me., states that a new corporation to be known as the Leighton-Valentine Co., with offices at New York City, has been formed, composed of the H. C. Leighton Post Card Company, formerly a Scottish concern, but with a large factory in New York; the Sackett & Wilhelms Co., of New York, probably the largest lithograph concern in this country, and other smaller concerns in the same line of business.

The new company will probably have an output of between 100,000,000 and 200,000,000 post cards and view cards and picture cards in their season.

The reason for the formation of the new corporation is given by the Leighton Company to be the new tariff schedule which so affects the German importation that the American importers cannot handle them to good advantage.

WHY NOT FOR BOOKS?

If we have to pay more for the food that we eat,

If we have to pay more for the clothes that we wear,

For the trips that we take,

And the plans that we make,

And the general wear and tear;

If prices of everything now are more

Than ever they were in the world before,

Is there any legitimate fact, you know,

Why the price of a book should still stay low?

If we have to pay more for the paper and cloth;

If we have to pay more for the print inside;

For the pictures desired,

And the jackets admired—

Which hardly can be denied—

If civilized man cannot live without books,

And needs them much more than he thinks he needs cooks,

We folks in the business would like to inquire

Why the price of a book should not be higher?

If we have to pay more for the rent and the coal;

If we have to pay more for the light we need;

For our clerks that haste

To arrive at your taste,

The problem's simple indeed!

If you knew the original cost of a book,

And the freight or express its delivery took,

You'd understand then, if you didn't before,

That the price of a book has just got to be more.

COMMUNICATION.

POSTAGE ON FOREIGN INVOICES.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR:

Repeatedly American publishers send us invoices in open envelopes as printed matter, with insufficient stamps on the cover. We are accustomed to refuse those invoices, as we always have to pay the post office the insufficient postage. Should it not be proper for THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to mention the fact in its columns, and thus avert this difficulty. Invoices sent without the merchandise are liable to the ordinary letter postage, i.e., 5 American cents for every 20 grams. Will you kindly mention this in your paper. It will avoid a good deal of trouble in future. With anticipated thanks and respectful greetings.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM GOODSON.

WILLIAM GOODSON, secretary of the corporation of Thomas Nelson & Sons, died in the General Memorial Hospital, New York, on Tuesday, October 25, where he had been confined with an incurable malady for nearly four months.

Mr. Goodson was born at Nottingham, England, in 1840. In 1866 he came to America at the earnest solicitation of Mr. William Amery of the firm of Pott & Amery, who was an uncle of his wife. As bookkeeper he remained with this house through its various changes for a period of nearly thirty-eight years, or until the corporation of E. & J. B. Young & Co. was merged into that of Thomas Nelson & Sons in 1904, acting as its secretary from 1896 until 1904. He then assumed a post in the accounting department of the reorganized Nelson house under Mr. William Thomson, who was then chief bookkeeper. In 1905, when a complete change of officers took place, Mr. Goodson was made secretary, Mr. Thomson becoming president.

Mr. Goodson, in his long service of nearly forty-five years in continuity, was known and esteemed by those in the trade with whom he came in contact as a most painstaking and devoted worker, a man whose chief aim at all times and under all circumstances was thoroughness. His associates knew him to love him for these sterling qualities. His health for nearly a year past, owing to a cancerous growth, caused him much anxiety, but it was not until July last that he finally gave up desk work, when he was placed in a hospital for what care was possible to receive and until death relieved a patient sufferer. He is survived by a son and a daughter.

BLANCHE WILCOX BARNES, wife of W. R. Barnes, and daughter of J. W. Wilcox, both of the C. M. Barnes-Wilcox Co., of Chicago, passed away on Oct. 26 at her late residence, 5029 Kenmore Avenue, after many months of suffering and a long and brave battle for life. She was active in church, social and club life, and was a devoted wife and mother, leaving two young sons, Charles Montgomery Barnes, 2d, and John Wilcox Barnes.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

A DECREE for the sale of The Boston Herald to the bondholders on private terms was issued by Judge Colt of the United States Circuit Court last week. At the first meeting of The Boston Herald, Incorporated, which will take over the Herald property, Robert L. O'Brien was elected president and J. W. Farley treasurer.

A PETITION in bankruptcy has been filed against the Electric Age Co., publishers of the Electric Age, a trade paper, of 45 East Forty-second Street, New York, by the Wynkoop-Hallenbeck-Crawford Company and others. The publication was started in 1883 and since then a large amount of money has been spent on its circulation. The present company became the owner in December, 1905, when it was incorporated with a capital stock of $125,000.

THE November Bookman continues Fred-eric Taber Cooper's articles on the "Craftsmanship of Writing," taking up this time "The Technique of Form," and covering such points as "The Choice of Form," "Diversity of Methods," "The Architecture of Verse," "The Invention of New Forms," etc. As a companion article to "The Heroine and Her Clothes," of last month's issue, Edna Kenton has this time "The Menu in Modern Fiction," wherein we learn that H. G. Wells is a writer of "deep, peptic truth," of G. K. Chesterton's "Feast of Fear," where the vegetarian secretary eats "half a raw tomato and drinks three-fourths of a glass of tepid water;" and of Helen Green's "Actors' Boarding House," where "under the eggs nestled coyly an inch or two of true Fourteenth Street ham, hard and brittle." Among the special articles are Kate Douglas Wiggin in the "Representative American Story Tellers" series; "The Society Novel" in the series of "Inside Views of Fiction;" "The Younger American Playwrights," by Clayton Hamilton; and the usual interesting Chronicle and Comment.

PERSONAL NOTE.

THEODORE DREISER has resigned as editor of the Delineator in order to devote himself entirely to literary work. His place will not be filled for the present, but Mr. Cosgrave, editor-in-chief of all the Wilder-Ridgway publications, will take active charge pending the carrying out of some editorial plans which he has in contemplation. The burden of the work on Everybody's meanwhile will fall upon the associate editors, Gilman Hall and Trumbull White. Mr. Dreiser was formerly editor of Hampton's. While at the Delineator he carried through the latter magazine's "Child Rescue Campaign," one of the most successful of recent magazine crusades. Mr. Dreiser is now completing a novel, which in power and appeal is said by those who have seen it to surpass his "Sister Carrie" of eight years ago, important as the latter novel was.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"LET the Roof Fall In" is the title of the new novel by Frank Danby, the author of "The Heart of a Child" and "Pigs in Clover." It will be published immediately by Messrs. D. Appleton & Company.

BJORNSSON's famous play, "A Lesson in Marriage," will be brought out next month by Brandu's Publishing Co. The translator is Miss Grace Isabel Colbron. This will be the first English version of the play.

WESSELS & BISSELL Co. take pleasure announcing that they have been appointed agents for the publications of Harvard University. The current publications will be carried in stock in New York.

It is some time since we had a new book from Mr. Joseph Conrad. He has been engaged for a year or so past on a new story that is now nearing completion, and will make its appearance presently under the title of "Razunov."

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, Cambridge, has just issued a handsomely bound book of title pages, containing more than a hundred title pages in color, submitted in a recent competition conducted by Printing Art. A moderate price is charged for the book and it should give some suggestions for title page make-up.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & COMPANY have just published "Sigurd, a Poem," by Arthur Peterson, in which is told the story of Sigurd or Siegfried, the hero being depicted as a young Norse rover, a wanderer not only by land, but by sea, an innovation which seems to lend itself naturally to the established legend.

"JUDITH," a tragedy in five acts, by Martin Schütze, is published this week by Henry Holt & Company. This poetical drama is based on the apocryphal story of Judith and Holofernes. Another book from this firm is S. Carleton Jones's "Out of Drowning Valley," a stirring story of love, fighting and a western gold mine.

AN amalgamation of several of the leading publishers of popular music doing business in this country is announced. This will probably indirectly involve many not directly concerned in the publication of music. The amount concerned in the combination is reported to be two million dollars.

CANADA may possibly win an important victory from England on the question of copyright legislation. Heretofore, with British copyrights valid all over the Empire, Canada could make legislation only so far as it did not conflict with imperial Government laws. Canada purposes to insist on a local copyright with a local "manufacturing clause" similar to our own. A detailed copy of the bill is not yet at hand.

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY announce for publication November 15, "The Golden Gal- leon, an Idyll of Woman's Love and Optimism," by Lucas Malet. Taking as her keynote the words of Marie De Nesselrode, "There is no one so forlorn as never to have known at least one stroke of fortune," the author tells how love came into a lonely woman's life and the use she made of love. C. E. Brock has made six illustrations in color for the book.

THE PILGRIM PRESS, Boston, have a number of books appropriate for Christmas remembrances, among them Stephen A. Norton's "The Call of the Heights: Echoes from the Letter to the Philippians;" George Thomas Smart's "If I Should Meet the Master;" Howard Allen Bridgman's "Real Religion;" Charles E. Jefferson's "An Original Year;" a book of essays for young college men, by Charles Reynolds Brown, entitled "The Cap and Gown;" and several new titles in their attractive little envelope books.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish a book by Frederic Jesup Stimson, Professor of Comparative Law in Harvard University. The work is "Popular Law-making, a Study of the Origin, History, and Present Tendencies of Law-making by Statutes." It is an able and brilliant study of the tendencies of English and American legislation, showing their growth from the beginning, with a lucid exposition of legislative conditions to-day by one of the most distinguished of living authorities on the subject.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY have sent us "American Corporations," by John J. Sullivan, Assistant Professor in Business Law at the University of Pennsylvania; "Corporation Finance," by Edward Sherwood Meade, of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania; and "Up Hill and Down Dale in Ancient Etruria," by Frederick Seymour, a well illustrated and interesting volume treating of the abandoned sites of Etruria rather than those still occupied.

FROM the Outing Publishing Company comes Robert Sloss's "The Automobile, its Selection, Care and Use," a book that takes the reader through the whole field of automobile knowledge. It tells how to select the car, what is necessary to its proper care, and how the greatest amount of comfort and safety may be secured by the intelligent driver. Instructions are given for insuring long life to the tires, the amateur chauffeur is assisted in the building of his garage, and the lover of tours and camping trips receives instruction that will be invaluable.

A NOVEL scrap book has just been issued by the Reilly & Britton Company in "The Rainy Day Scrap Book," by E. L. and E. T. Shuman. In an envelope on the inside cover are more than one hundred pictures unlabelled; these are to be cut out and pasted in the correct spaces in the body of the book. The pages are made of heavy gray paper and have places arranged for the pictures, properly labelled and described, and the fitting of space and picture together makes this a combination puzzle and scrap book.

HERMAN BERNSTEIN's translation of Leonid Andreyev's "Anathema," a play of mingled allegory and realism dealing with various aspects of human misery and its alleviation, is just issued by the Macmillan Company. They also have ready "Poems," by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer; "Life in the Roman World of Nero and St. Paul," by T. G. Tucker, author of "Life in Ancient Athens;" and William Stearns Davis's "The Influence of Wealth in Imperial Rome," a book of uncommon interest because of the unescapable though tacit parallel between some of the conditions of Imperial Rome and those of the present.

E. K. CHAMBERS, one of the foremost Shakespearian scholars of England, has now completed his edition of Shakespeare, a task of ten years. The H. M. Caldwell Company have secured the American rights of this "Red Letter Edition," as it is called, and will issue it at once in thirty-nine dainty pocket volumes. An excellent feature, both useful and ornamental, of this edition is that the names of the characters are printed in full in red-lettering, so that the reader is spared the task of deciphering clumsy abbreviations. To each play Mr. Chambers has contributed an introduction.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY publish two handsome books this week, one "The Whistler Book," by Sadakichi Hartmann, is a monograph of the life and position in art of the famous painter, with a careful study of his more important works; the volume has upwards of sixty reproductions in duogravures of Whistler's most important works. The other, "Panama and the Canal To-day," by Forbes Lindsay, is a well illustrated volume of intense interest and of real moment to the American public. It is an unbiased, unprejudiced story of the country Panama and the vast undertaking in which every American is so interested.

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT, President Emeritus of Harvard University, obtained an order from the Appellate Division last week restraining E. Milton Jones from using his name in any manner in advertising certain books purporting to be the same as Dr. Eliot's famous "five foot library." Robert J. Collier, who claims the exclusive right in Dr. Eliot's "shelf" and the sale and distribution of his list of the "world's best books," has a separate suit against E. Milton Jones and obtained a similar order from the court. Both Mr. Collier and Dr. Eliot have suits pending for alleged damages in the same actions.

THE HON. JOSEPH H. CHOATE has made a collection of the various speeches delivered by him when ambassador to Great Britain. The Century Company publish it under the title of "Abraham Lincoln and Other Addresses." "The Lure of the Antique," by Walter A. Dyer, is an attractively illustrated and authoritative and helpful discussion of the furniture, glass, china, silver and brass which formed part of the home life and household equipment of our American forefathers, either before the American Revolution or immediately after, and a complete and satisfactory guide to intelligent buying and appreciation of these antiques. And all through it runs the fine feeling of one who understands "the charm that rests in a rare old piece of mahogany."

THE TORCH PRESS, Cedar Rapids, Ia., announce to the trade that they are now represented in New York City by Mr. G. M. Mischke, at 29-33 West Forty-second Street, and that all Eastern dealers can save both time and expense by sending orders to him. Their Autumn books now ready include, "Lincoln and Herndon," by Joseph Fort Newton; "American Editions of Dickens, a Bibliography," by William Glyde Wilkins; "Old London Town," by Henry Watter-son; "Life and Letters of John Brown," by F. B. Sanborn, in a new and cheaper edition; "Henry Thoreau," by Theodore Watts-Dunton; "Forest and Town," by Alexander N. De Menil; "Literature of Childhood," by William Marion Reedy; "The Iowa Indians," by William Harvey Miner.

AMONG the new publications announced for the Fall to be put out by Thomas Whitaker, Inc., there may be noted a new book by Rev. F. St. John Corbett, entitled "A Thousand Thoughts for Preachers;" a volume of sermons by the Rev. R. C. Faithful of Petersboro, entitled "My Place in the World;" "Notes of Sermons for the Year," in two volumes, by Rev. H. J. Wilmot Buxton; "The Level Plan for Church Union," by the Rt. Rev. William M. Brown, D.D., Bishop of Arkansas, a résumé of which became famous because of its expulsion from the General Convention, due to its breadth of view; a volume of sermons by the late Canon Farrar, edited by his son, entitled "Bells and Pomegranates," and Canon Duncan's book, "Popular Hymns, Their Authors and Teaching."

W. A. WILDE COMPANY, Boston, have already issued some of their attractive Fall juveniles, among them, "Phil's Happy Girlhood," by Grace Blanchard, a story for girls about fifteen, in which the good times and sad of a merry group of young people are recorded; "Betty Gaston, the Seventh Girl," by Marion Ames Taggart, is a new volume in the already popular Six Girls Series; a sequel to "Ralph Osborn—Midshipman at Annapolis" is Commander Edward L. Beach's "Midshipman Ralph Osborn at Sea," which carries the hero to the Philippines; "Those Preston Twins," by Izola Forrester, relates what befell a delightful brother and sister; and an addition to the Happy Hour Series, "The Little Chum Club," edited by Elizabeth Hoyt, telling all about the doings of five brothers and sisters.

THE University of Chicago Press will hereafter be represented in New York City by the Baker & Taylor Co., 33 East Seventeenth Street. Dealers and customers east of Buffalo and Pittsburg will save time by ordering of this agency. Any of the books on the list of the University Press can be thus obtained. During the past summer arrangements have been completed by which the Cambridge University Press assumes the British agency for the books and journals issued by the University of Chicago Press. The understanding is that the Cambridge Press shall have exclusive right to the sale of these publications throughout the British Empire (including Egypt) in the eastern hemisphere. The connection thus formed between the newest of the great universities with one of the oldest, should be a matter for congratulation in both countries.

HARPER & BROTHERS have ready "Through Five Administrations," reminiscences of Colonel William H. Crook, body-guard to President Lincoln. The author's material has been adequately and sympathetically edited by Margarita Spalding Gerry, author of the Lincoln story, "The Toy-Shop." There are many interesting illustrations. As every new fact regarding Lincoln is precious, the earlier part of this book, especially, is of permanent value. In 1864 Colonel Crook was appointed body-guard to the President. He gives many details of Lincoln's life at the White House, tells about the visitors who thronged the anteroom of the President's office, and relates anecdotes hitherto untold. The remainder of the book is hardly less interesting. It deals in similar fashion with the administrations of Johnson, Grant, Hayes and Garfield. The book shows the social life of the times, and relates many informal episodes.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY issued this week, "China Under the Empress Dowager," by J. O. P. Bland and Edmund Backhouse. This important work covers the history of China and its great ruler for the past fifty years. The special feature of the book is the diary of Ching Shan, a most vivid and thrilling document which gives a daily and detailed account of the thoughts, words and deeds of the Empress and her immediate advisers, from the beginning of the Boxer Rising to the day of the relief of Peking, when the diarist was murdered. Other publications of the week from the Lippincotts are "The New New Guinea," by Beatrice Grimshaw; "On Trail and Rapid by Dog Sled and Canoe," by Rev. H. A. Cody; a reprint of "I Married a Soldier," by Lydia Spencer Lane, and new popular-priced editions of Ridgeway's "Manual of North American Birds," and Douglas Sladen's "Secrets of the Vatican."

SMALL, MAYNARD & COMPANY have ready the three following books: "The Confession of a Rebellious Wife," a remarkable human document, written from the inside, voicing a real heartache, a real puzzle, a real resolve; "At the New Theatre and Others," by Walter Richard Eaton, dealing with the problems and performances on the stage in America from 1908-1910 and many other things of interest in matters dramatic; and "The Prodigal Pro Tem," by Frederick Orin Bartlett, author of "The Seventh Noon," the scene of which is laid in the Catskills, and the hero is a New York artist who is wandering through the country on a sketching tour. At the side of the road he comes upon a young girl, softly crying over a letter which she has just received. Impulsively he offers his assistance and sympathy, and learns that she has just heard from her brother in Alaska that he will not come home to comfort the old age of their blind father. The young artist offers himself as a substitute, a prodigal pro tem, and thereby hangs the tale.

DUFFIELD & COMPANY have ready some particularly attractive juveniles. A very handsome volume containing Hawthorne's "Wonder Book," and "Tanglewood Tales," with full-page pictures in color by Maxfield Parrish is a book sure to satisfy all children and grown-ups with an artistic appreciation; "Ten Boys from History," by Kate Dickinson Sweetser, with illustrations by George Alfred Williams tells the stories of ten boys of different nations who are famous in history; Jessie Willcox Smith has selected and illustrated a collection of poems, long favorites with small people, which she calls "A Child's Book of Old Verses;" "The Animal Trainer," from the French of P. Guigou, by Edgar Mills, and illustrated in color by A. Vimar, is the amusing tale of what befell a famous trainer and his menagerie; John Rae's "The Pies and the Pirates;" a "Shadow Show, with a Scissors-Supplement," is an entertaining rhymed story with a supplement to cut out so the children can give the play themselves. For grown-up readers this house has ready "White Roses," by Katharine Holland Brown, a tale of the Texas desert, and a new volume in Fiona Macleod's complete works, containing "The Silence of Amor," and "Where the Forest Murmurs."

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Geo. B. Doan & Company, educational booksellers, are in bankruptcy.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.—Edwin T. Hanford, senior member of the well-known firm of Hanford & Horton, retires from the old firm to become cashier of the Merchants Bank of Middletown. Stanley G. Shimer has purchased the interest of the retiring president and will be secretary and treasurer of the concern, which will continue under the firm name of Hanford & Horton. De Witt S. Horton now becomes president. The store, after sixty-four years of uninterrupted existence, is now the largest book store to be found between New York City and Binghamton.

NEW YORK CITY.—F. C. Stechert Company announce their organization, with headquarters at 29-35 West Thirty-second Street, to carry on a general book-selling business, new and second hand, including book exportation and importation. Mr. Stechert has had many years' experience in the business founded by his father, and intends to make a specialty of the library trade.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Dodge Publishing Co., have purchased the art novelty department of the Collier Co., who are retiring this end of their business. The Collier line includes their art calendars, valentines, pictures, etc. The Dodge Co. have also secured the publishing rights on future Collier pictures.

PICK-UPS.

PROFESSOR GARNER has taught a chimpanzee to speak intelligibly. Then there is still hope for the subway guards.

OMITTED FROM THE WEEKLY'S PAPER NUMBER.

WOGGS (2009).—The Richleighs are very lavish entertainers.

BOGGS.—Yes. At the close of their banquet last evening each guest was presented with a solid wooden toothpick.—Puck.

FIRST AID.

THE BOOKSELLER—This, sir, is an excellent book on swimming, and a very useful one, too.

THE CUSTOMER—Useful?

THE BOOKSELLER—Yes, sir. If ever you find yourself drowning, you have only to turn to pages 88 and 89 and there you will find full instructions how to save yourself.—Sketch.

SALESMANSHIP.

A CUSTOMER entered a store and asked the clerk for certain cigarettes. "I want Paul Maul," he said.

"Paul Maul? Yes, sir," was the prompt response, and the goods were laid before him.

Ten minutes later a customer asked for a package of "Pal Mal."

"Pal Mal? Yes, sir." And the article was promptly delivered to him.

In five minutes, "Give me a package of Pell Mell," requested a third customer.

"Pell Mell? Yes, sir," was the polite answer and the purchase was promptly made.

"Say—how do you pronounce 'Pall Mall,' anyway?" an observer asked of the clerk.

"I pronounce it exactly as the customer pronounces it," was the answer. Which is good tact and good business.—The Publisher & Retailer.

Books Wanted

Under this head booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noticed.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm-name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withdrawing their use from irresponsible advertisers, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Recorded in OCTOBER, 1910

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics. The figures in parentheses are not the imprint date, but refer to the date of "The Publishers' Weekly" in which full title entry will be found and not to the day of publication, for which information should be sought in the full title entry thus indicated. When month only is given in parentheses this is the original entry and title will not be found in Weekly Record.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only, on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

The Most Amazing Human Document of Recent Years

CHINA UNDER THE EMPRESS DOWAGER

Being the History of the Life and Times of Tzu Hsi

Compiled from State Papers and the Private Diary of the Comptroller of Her Household

By J. O. P. BLAND and E. BACKHOUSE

For the first time this remarkable volume lifts the veil that diplomacy allowed to fall over the late Empress Dowager's share in the Boxer outbreak during the summer of 1900.

It begins with an introductory history of the Yehonala family, and graphically covers the stirring incidents and happenings during Tzu Hsi's eventful reign from her first regency to her death. It also incorporates the diary of His Excellency Ching Shan which is more illuminating than perhaps any document that has ever come out of China. In it is recorded what actually took place from day to day in the Forbidden City during the siege of the Legations, and what was the manner and cause of many strange incidents during that period of stress and storm.
